Description

Job ID: 24495

Would you like to be part of a Nordic team, developing the future credit processes for our customers? We are now looking for experienced Business and Data Analysts in the newly created Recovery and Loss Data Team and are offering you an exciting opportunity to develop key capabilities at the heart of Nordea. Your work will require to understand the connection between business processes, data and the respective IT set-up to pro-actively solve complex problems. You will work closely with other team members and relevant stakeholders to drive the implementation of new solutions and processes for business and regulatory requirements connected to Nordea's Credit Risk process.

At Nordea, we're committed to being a partner that our customers and society can count on. Compliance and integrity go hand in hand. Joining us means you'll have an impact on how we do banking – today and tomorrow. So bring your ideas, skills and unique background. With us, you'll be in good company with plenty of opportunities to collaborate, grow and make your mark on something bigger.

About this opportunity

Welcome to the Recovery and Loss Data team. We are a new team, driving the development of new processes and solutions for the collection and monitoring of recovery and loss data, such as in debt collection. Our aim is to build sustainable processes and supporting tools that cater for automation through which we enable great customer experiences. We work closely with our IT partners to lead the development in this space. We maintain and foster close collaborations with stakeholders and development units in the business areas and other group functions.

What you'll be doing:

- Structuring and driving analysis from initiation to successful delivery in close collaboration with management and stakeholders
- Be part of an agile structure, with focus on defining, evaluating and prioritizing features working closely with development teams and relevant stakeholders
- Ensuring our solutions meet business and regulatory requirements and maximize business value
- Building expertise of Nordea's credit risk agenda especially on High Risk
