

Data and Automation Analyst

Description

Company Description

Securing pensions over the long term can be a challenge for many businesses. Our ambition at Legal & General Retirement Institutional (LGRI) is to help companies and pension scheme trustees honour their defined benefit pension promises to their employees. We're helping companies settle their pension liabilities so they can focus on growing their businesses, as well as helping to support their members' financial security in retirement. And we're investing for the long term to back our pension promises. In the last 30 years we've written more UK business than any other insurer, and we currently look after more than half a million pension policyholders. We're the UK's longest-serving active bulk annuity provider, and a market-leading, multi-award-winning business.

Job Description

We're recruiting for a Data and Automation Analyst to join our Finance Transformation Team. We're offering a competitive base salary, great benefits and full actuarial study support, as well as the opportunity to help deliver the Data and Automation strategy of LGRI Finance by supporting a wide range of initiatives/process improvements to help improve processes.

What you'll be doing:

- Participating in the wider Data and Automation team's work to improve processes within LGRI Finance and other departments that we work with
- Helping to develop and implement innovative ways of operating to improve the efficiency of the LGRI Finance department and reduce manual work
- Keeping key stakeholders informed of progress on allocated initiatives, considering the most appropriate form of communication and ensuring updates are timely
- Working with the wider Finance Transformation team to proactively identify areas that the Data and Automation team could support in achieving their ambitious plans
- Ensuring that controls and control frameworks are embedded in any work undertaken on allocated projects
- Ensuring that the appropriate process, systems and controls are in place, and that the risks and issues are identified and escalated within LGR, to ensure that customers are treated fairly in line with Legal & General's Customer Experience and TCF policy

Qualifications

Who we're looking for:

- A part qualified actuary who has made significant progress with the actuarial exams, and preferably has some previous experience in life insurance
- A reasonable understanding of, or the ability to learn about, the following:
